

Hi, Dr. Hefeeda

I am Jonghun Seol currently majoring in computing science. To introduce myself, I have previously participated in several Major and Minor CSSS projects and was in a lead position. I was a lead coordinator for CSSS mountain madness hackathon, an event committee head ran ice skating social, end of year social event, and an Exec at Large of CSSS.

When I first came up with an idea of hosting Hackathon, Sarbjot showed great interest, and decided to help me planning. Although I started off from the scrap, based on Sarbjot 's experience running a coding contest with Mobify, we easily built the format. Not only his experience with Mobify helped but he also thrived to put effort finding every previous hackathon that CSSS hosted. It allowed us to contact those who have previously ran the event, which saved us much time since we were given only 3 months to prepare. It took the 3 months of preparation and I wouldn't have done it without Sarbjot.

Sarbjot is not just a great friend but also a great leader. I was simply a student studying like a dog, not knowing extracurriculars, not knowing how to meet people with common interest. However, when I first met Sarbjot, he introduced me to CSSS and along with few others wessssss formed event committee. We have discussed things that we could change and work with. For instance, I volunteered Mobify through Sarbjot, and had great experience networking, seeing visual work, and what the actual coder look like. We have also planned out extra networking event such as ice skating, and year end social event which turned out successfully.

For last, Sarbjot is one of the greatest teacher in my life. After he spends his time listening to my question whether it's algorithm or a question, teaches me in a way that anyone could understand. For instance, there were some explanation that did not make sense, so Sarbjot approached from different angle, giving me simplified but including core explanation, which shows how much time he spends and effort put in to help me. .

Sarbjot is strangely enough for me to doubt where his leadership and kindness come from. Words are easy to say but the behaving is always the most difficult problem but for Sarbjot, in his kind nature, always make action to help anyone. d
